REPORT

Date September 4 1939.

Subject. Assassination of Wong Long Sih (王潤仙), at Lane 1699 Bubbling Well Road.

Made by. D.S.I. Liao Chung-chien, Forwarded by. C. Crawford S.I.

Discreet enquiries elicit that the deceased.
Wong Long Sih (王潤仙), who was assassinated on September 1, 1939 in Lane 1699 Well Road, was up to time of his death, employed with the Shipping Control Office of the "Shanghai City Government" as a tax collector and was stationed on a boat which plies in Ssochow Creek near Jessfield Village. He left his home daily at 6 a.m. and returned at 9 p.m.

The motive for the assassination has not yet been ascertained but a perusal of the documents found on the person of the deceased shows that he was in all probability, a secret service agent operating on behalf of the Chungking Government in the Japanese occupied areas where he, being outwardly a "Shanghai
City Government" official, was permitted free passage.

The names and addresses on the documents found on the person of the deceased have been checked but none are on record in this office.

A translation of the documents is attached to this report.

At 9.10 p.m. 1/9/39 S.I.C.600 brought to the station a public ricksha containing a female Hong Hsu Sz (王 24 女) and her husband Hong Long Sih (王 12 14), the latter suffering from a bullet wound in the head.

A C.F.B. Ambulance was summoned at once and conveyed the wounded man to the Red Cross Hospital where he was found to have a "Gun shot wound of head", as a result of which he died at 11.10 p.m. even date.

Enquiries by C.D.S.163, C.D.C.s 150 & 168 and the undersigned showed that the deceased was a native of Huchow, Chekiang province, age 37, and till 1938 was employed by a native bank in Huchow. Last year he together with his family left Huchow and in August 1938 came to Shanghai via Changsha and Hongkong and since his arrival resided at house No.83, Lane 1699 B'well Road.

The members of his household were carefully interrogated by detectives, but failed to supply any useful information, stating that the deceased did not inform them of his affairs. The deceased's wife said that her husband expected to get some employment at a dance-hall that was to be opened soon, but she did not know either the names of the promoters or the location of the said dance-hall.

At about 7 p.m. 1/9/39, the deceased came home and told his wife that he had to go to Huchow on 2/9/39 and that he would stay overnight in a lodging house, and asked his wife to pack his bedding and clothing. This was done and shortly before 9 p.m. 1/9/39 the deceased went out and called a public ricksha from B'well Road. The ricksha came to the back door of house No. 83, lane 1699 B'well Road.

Long Long Sih then sat in the ricksha, and his sister-in-law Long Sih Sz (王徐氏) and his wife brought out his luggage and placed onto the same ricksha, after which the deceased bade them farewell and ordered the ricksha puller to go. The females returned into the house and the ricksha proceeded towards B'well Road.

When the ricksha was about half-way between the deceased's house and the entrance to the lane (about 50 yards south of B'well Road) two male Chinese, approached the ricksha from behind and one of them fired a shot at the back of the deceased's head, after which they ran south along the lane, turning into a branch-lane leading to Avenue Haig.

The deceased's wife and sister-in-law heard the explosion and ran out (they claim they believed the explosion was caused by burst ricksha tire) and saw two men running south along the lane. One of the men was wearing white jacket and pants, whilst the other wore dark coloured jacket and pants. As the alleyway is very poorly lighted, the females were unable to obtain any further description of the men, who made good their escape.

RECORD OF INVESTIGATION.

The females ran to the ricksha and found the deceased to have been shot.

They took his luggage back into the house and Song Hsu sat in the ricksha to hold her husband's body, after which they proceeded to Well Road and Avenue Haig corner where they reported the crime to .1.2.600, who was on point duty. The above officer was about 100 yards away from the scene, but owing to the noises of heavy traffic at the intersection did not hear the shot. He took the ricksha to this station wherefrom the wounded man was conveyed to the Hospital.

A search was made in the vicinity, but no trace of the assailants could be found. One empty cartridge case was found at the scene of offence and will be forwarded to the A. I. Section on 2/9/39.

On examination of the deceased's clothing and luggage, five notes were found by detectives, which tend to show that he belonged to some political organisation. D.S.I. Wittinsky on duty at Special Branch, Headquarters, was communicated with and on instructions of D.I. Crawford request that the notes were sent to Special Branch on 2/9/39.

The notes together with two note-books, also found in possession of the deceased will be forwarded to Special Branch with a copy of this report.

Terrorist Guns Claim 2 More Victims Here

Doctor Murdered While Leaving Residence Of Patient

Terrorist guns claimed two more victims in Shanghai yesterday. One man is dead while another was so seriously wounded that he is not expected to live.

The dead man was Dr. Tsang Dao, 29-year-old local medical practitioner. He was shot and killed by an unknown Chinese gunman as he left the home of a patient at 191 Rue Magnin about 3 p.m.

The wounded man is Wong Teng-chi, 37, occupation still unknown. He was wounded by two killers while he happened to be walking along Lane 1669 Bubbling Well Road about 9.20 p.m.

Struck in Back

Wong, according to late police reports, was struck in the back by a bullet fired from a military Mauser. The missile embedded itself, through some strange strick, in the man's skull.

This shooting was not witnessed by the police but several passersby happened to be in the district, and saw the two killers escape from the scene. They placed the wounded in a ricksha and took him to the Bubbling Well Police Station.

From the station, he was sent to the Chinese Red Cross Hospital where an effort to save his life was still being made at midnight. Little hope, however, is held for his recovery.

Detectives of the Bubbling Well Police Station last night had made but little progress in determining Wong's occupation, or finding out anything about his past. The man himself was too weak to do much talking, hence he could throw no light on the shooting. It is believed, however, that he was the victim of a political shooting. The man was neatly dressed although nothing that would indicate that he might be a person of means was to be found on his person.

Dr. Tsang Dao, residing at House 8, Lane 312 Avenue Joffre, was called to the home of a patient at 191 Rue Magnin about 2 p.m. yesterday. As he left the place at 3 p.m., a Chinese who had been loitering outside, followed the physician to the curb.

Motive Unknown

The doctor entered a ricksha and told the puller to take him back to his home on Avenue Joffre. Just as the puller started off, the loiterer produced a pistol and opened fire. One bullet struck the doctor in the neck and another in the chest. He died on the way to the hospital.

His crime accomplished, the assassin dashed to the curb and jumped on a bicycle. He rode away in a westerly direction according to an account furnished by an eye-witness.

Detectives of the French Police last night admitted that they had not been unable to unearth a definite motive for the crime. The doctor was comparatively unknown in Shanghai. He had a small practice and had evidently resided here for only a short period. It is generally believed, however, that a political motive was one of the

CHINESE SHOT AT IN BUBBLING WELL

Lingers Between Life And Death In Red Cross Hospital

As a sequel to an attempted murder, another male Chinese named Wang Liang-hsi, aged 35, a native of Wuchow, was hovering between life and death in the Red Cross Chinese Hospital at a late hour last night with a bullet wound in his head.

Wang was walking in Lane 1699 Bubbling Well Road, when one of two unidentified armed men, fired three shots at him, only one bullet hitting its intended mark. The gunmen immediately fled and made good their escape.

The motive of the attempted murder was still being investigated by Bubbling Well Station police up till late last night.

The victim, was rushed to the hospital in an ambulance. He was still half-conscious, but unable to make a coherent statement, and hence it had not yet been ascertained up till late last night as to his occupation, or whether he knew the attempted murderers.

Doctors attending Wang feared that there was little chances of his recovery.

Chinese Shot Dead In Settlement

Third Murder in Sixteen Hours Claims Former Bank
Employee as Victim

Shanghai's third murder in sixteen hours took place at 9.37 last night when Wang Laung-sih, 37-year old former employee of the Bank of China, was shot and fatally wounded in the head by an unknown gunman in Lane 1699 Bubbling Well Road. Wang died in the Red Cross Hospital at 11.10 last night.

The dead man had left his home at House 83, Lane 1699, Bubbling Well Road, and was proceeding in the direction of the street when he was accosted by two men dressed in Chinese clothing. One of them was reported to have whipped out a pistol and fired one shot at Wang, wounding him in the head. The killer and his accomplice then made good their escape.

Wang was formerly employed by the Bank of China in Hongkong. He came to Shanghai about a year ago but had been unable to find employment. He was engaged in a small business dealing in second-hand goods and was also reported to have been connected with a local gambling establishment. Police from Bubbling Well Station who are investigating the case do not believe that it was a political murder. The motive behind the killing is thought to be revenge.

Chinese Doctor Killed
In French Concession*Unknown Assassin Fires
Two Shots at Physician

Dr. Tsang Dao, alias Tsang Hong-seng, 29-year old Chinese doctor of medicine, was brutally murdered as he stepped out of the home of a patient at 160 Route Magniny at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, by an unknown Chinese assassin who made his escape on a bicycle immediately after the killing. The killer fired two shots from a pistol at Dr. Tsang, wounding him in the head and in the abdomen. He was rushed to Ste. Marie's Hospital by ambulance but was pronounced dead upon arrival.

French Concession police who are investigating the murder are of the opinion that there was nothing political connected with the killing. Chinese circles are of the belief that it was another case of the "eternal triangle" and that the motive for the crime was jealousy. The dead man is survived by his wife and the affair was made more tragic in that she is an expectant mother. Dr. Tsang and his wife lived at House 8, Lane 312, Avenue Joffre.

DOCTOR MURDERED IN FRENCHTOWN

Four Shots Fired As Surgeon Returns To His Home

Guns barked again on the streets of Shanghai last evening, in spite of constant strict police surveillance and the searching of buses and trams. At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Dr. Tsang Dao, aged 29, a surgeon, was shot to death by an unknown assassin shortly after he had left the residence of a patient at 160 Route Magniny.

Three or four shots were fired at him, one bullet lodging in his face, near the nose, while another struck the abdomen. The doctor was riding in a private ricscha when the gunman opened fire on him without the slightest warning. The puller dropped the shafts at the sound of the shots and the passenger slumped to the ground. The gunman who fired the shots succeeded in making good his escape on a bicycle, immediately turning off into a side street.

The victim was proceeding from a patient's home to his private residence at House No. 8, Lane 812, Avenue Joffre, when he was murdered in cold blood.

No witnesses were present at the scene with the exception of the ricscha puller who did not get a good look at the gunman and who was taken by complete surprise. Dr. Tsang had no enemies as far as it known. French Police are conducting investigations.
